

Environmental, Social, and Governance Policy Overview

January 2021

To our fellow stakeholders and shareholders:

2020 has been a year of unprecedented events. We have faced a global pandemic, an uncertain economy, social injustice, and civil unrest. This has affected the ways we work and the ways we live. These events have also reinforced the importance of what we do.

Runway was founded with the mission of supporting passionate entrepreneurs in building great businesses. In doing so, we have a responsibility to ensure we are funding companies that are making a positive impact on the world, today and in the future. By keeping this a core part of our business strategy, we believe we will improve our planet while delivering strong returns to our investors.

The decisions we make are guided by Environmental, Social, and Governance (ESG) principles. This framework helps us to be the right partner for our stakeholders and helps us select the right partners to invest with.

At Runway, we equally value all components of ESG. We are committed to our principles and committed to being a good corporate citizen. By operating this way, we are a better company for our employees, our investors and our partners.

David Spreng Chairman, CEO and CIO, Runway Growth Capital

ESG IN THE INVESTMENT PROCESS

ESG Pre-Term Sheet

 ESG starts before a term sheet is signed. A preliminary checklist is included in our First Deal Review model. This checklist impacts company tier and potential issues are highlighted early.

ESG in Due Diligence

• The full ESG checklist is reviewed with the Company. Compliance is required before a deal can be approved. Any deals in question are reviewed by the ESG Committee, who makes recommendations to the Investment Committee.

ESG Post Deal-Funding

• As part of annual review, we walk through the checklist again. ESG questions are included in the compliance certificate.

We have been able to increase our giving amount every year since the fund was established. Since inception, our team has designated more than 20 organizations in our communities as grant recipients, supporting human services, animals, the environment, education, health services, arts and culture. Given the challenging times, we are extremely thankful to have the opportunity to support these organizations.
